

ANSWER

Figure 4.1 shows language learning strategy use from an open-ended question in terms of categories. In comparison, the highest frequency of strategy use is self-management with repetition the second highest. Self-management and self-evaluation frequencies are highly different. Co-operation and self-evaluation are at the same level of frequency. The low frequency group of strategy use covers translation, affective, and self-encouragement, self-monitoring, taking notes. The lowest group of strategy use covers using imagery, recombination, and directed-attention. The least covers transfer and underlining.