

The data indicate not only that informants were aware of the principles of a communicative approach and its place in the required curriculum, but (also) that the older approaches persist because some teachers find them useful and appropriate with certain group of learners.